Team, for your awareness, please read the attached.

Bottom Line:
havebeenflocked.com

The website lists the total number of searches by an officer, when those searches were conducted, case numbers, the officer's work schedule, how long they have been employed by the agency, and partial personal identifying information. This poses a significant officer safety risk to law enforcement personnel because suspects can determine if they are the target of a criminal investigation and potentially retaliate against law enforcement and/or those cooperating with law enforcement. Flock has committed to removing officer usernames from future audits.
